

CELEBRATING NATIONAL MEDICAL LABORATORY WEEK

HON. JULIAN C. DIXON

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, April 7, 1995

Mr. DIXON. Mr. Speaker, I rise to recognize National Medical Laboratory Week, April 16–22. This year's theme is "The Lab Professional: A Key Member of Your Health Care Team." I want to specifically extend my personal thanks to the key members of the health care team at Washington Medical Center Clinical Laboratory in Culver City in my congressional district for their pursuit of excellence in providing vital health services.

Medical laboratory personnel constitute the largest segment of the allied health field. There are more than 265,000 laboratory personnel, including pathologist, medical technologists, specialists, and phlebotomists, at work in almost 40,000 hospital and independent laboratories in the United States. These highly trained and dedicated health professionals make an invaluable contribution to quality health care and save countless lives each day by providing reliable laboratory test results required for the prevention, detection, diagnosis, and treatment of disease.

We often overlook these health professionals who are rarely seen by patients but who make invaluable contributions to the high standards of health care enjoyed in the United States. I urge my colleagues to join me in extending my thanks to medical laboratory personnel for their commitment to providing quality health services to the Nation, and my best wishes for a successful National Laboratory Week.

INSURANCE TAX FAIRNESS AND SMALL INSURANCE COMPANY
ECONOMIC GROWTH ACT OF 1995

HON. HELEN CHENOWETH

OF IDAHO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, April 7, 1995

Mrs. CHENOWETH. Mr. Speaker, Mr. FILNER of California, and I are introducing legislation today that strikes at the very heart of why those of us elected to the 104th Congress feel so strongly about our national purpose and identity. In this instance the issue is tax fairness; all Americans and American companies must pay their fair shares of taxes. This is the sum and essence of my legislation which is entitled the "Insurance Tax Fairness and Small Insurance Company Economic Growth Act of 1995."

To amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to revise the limitation applicable to mutual life insurance companies on the deduction for policyholder dividends and to exempt small life insurance companies from the required capitalization of certain policy acquisition expenses.

Mr. Speaker, we have been hearing a great deal about corporate welfare these days; it appears to be what the New York Times, in its op-ed page referred to, on Wednesday, April 5, as a "new political catch phrase" that has entered "the Washington lexicon."

This is not a liberal or a conservative issue, Mr. Speaker, but an American issue. In fact the matter I cited above was Stephen Moore, director of fiscal policy studies at the Cato Institute. A strong voice for conservative thinking in America.

We have heard the distinguished chair of our Budget Committee, my colleague from Ohio, JOHN KASICH, use the phrase on several occasions. And the Senator from Texas, PHIL GRAMM, has also been cited for his concern with huge losses suffered by the Federal Treasury.

In fact, the Cato Institute states, according to Mr. Moore, that "Congress finances more than 125 programs that subsidize private businesses at a net cost of $85 billion a year."

I have no reason to doubt these figures, Mr. Speaker, even as I am shocked by simply stating the facts. We must get to the bottom of this issue, and it would be another great legacy of the 104th Congress if we could look at corporate welfare in the light of day, and rectify the mistakes of the past.

Our legislation, which will also be cosponsored by others who will join us after the recess, is perfectly timed for the huge problems we face as a nation. How we use our resources, both material and spiritual, remain the most important questions of our time.

I face these issues each day in both the Agriculture and Resources Committees I serve on. In terms of fiscal matters, I am often confronted with the issue of how are we going to pay for such and such a program, and still remain true to our principles of fiscal responsibility.

Our legislation will restore approximately $2 billion annually to the Federal coffers for use as Congress designates. It will mean that a few of the giant mutual insurance companies begin to pay taxes that Congress intended them to pay in the first place through section 809 of the U.S. Tax Code.

It is not intended in any way to divide the insurance industry; the overwhelming number of insurance companies are exempt from this legislation. It is intended, simply and specifically, to close a loophole that has long concerned many students of our tax system, and restore a level playing field for all corporate taxes.

By closing this loophole, Mr. Speaker, we will take a giant step toward restoring faith and confidence in the American political process. I urge the Ways and Means Committee to give it immediate consideration, and I am looking forward to joining with additional cosponsors. The time for the enactment of this legislation is now; it will make the 104th Congress the historic Congress that confronted and solved the problems of the past and looks forward to the new century with hope and optimism. We can do no less, Mr. Speaker. This legislation must be enacted.

TRIBUTE TO ZACH NUSSBAUM

HON. RANDY "DUKE" CUNNINGHAM

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, April 7, 1995

Mr. CUNNINGHAM. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to salute the heroism of one of my younger constituents, Zach Nussbaum, of Fairbanks Ranch, CA. As the article below details, Zach saved his mother's life several weeks ago.

When Susan Nussbaum collapsed from dehydration on February 23, young Zach went to the phone and dialed 911, summoning an ambulance to his home. Zach remained on the line for 15 minutes and helped to direct the emergency crew to his house.

All of this happened on Zach's fifth birthday, which points out the importance of teaching our kids at an early age about 911 and how to get help in an emergency. I'm pleased to report that Susan Nussbaum has fully recovered and that Zach has returned to his normal routine.

Mr. Speaker, I know my colleagues join me in saluting the courage and heroism of Zach Nussbaum.

5-YEAR-OLD SAVES MOM'S LIFE—FAIRBANKS
RANCH BOY KNEW HOW TO DIAL 911

(By John P. Lyons)

As Zach Nussbaum cuddles his two favorite stuffed animals, Sonic and Tails, it's hard to believe that not too long ago he saved his mother's life.

But that's exactly what he did.

On Feb. 23, Zach's fifth birthday, his mother succumbed to dehydration and collapsed on the floor of the family's Fairbanks Ranch home.

Unfazed, Zach went to the phone and dialed 911, ultimately remaining on the phone for more than 15 minutes, and leading medical workers to his unconscious mother.

"It was his birthday present to his mother," said Susan Nussbaum, who has since recovered.

But Zach, who said he learned how to dial 911 practicing on his mother's car phone, was characteristically nonchalant about the entire incident.

"We practiced 911 in the car and didn't press the send button," he said. "I take care of my mom."

According to his mother Zach was calm throughout the incident, and showed no signs of trauma later.

But the authorities were impressed.

Most children Zach's age are not as helpful or competent when confronted with a real 911 situation, according to Sheriff's Deputy Roy Casteneda.

Zach, however, is no ordinary kid, and is already an avid workbook reader.

On the 911 tape, Zach could be heard giving medics directions to the Nussbaum house and then attempting to wake his mother, according to Susan Nussbaum.

"And when the ambulance arrived he simply said 'I'm done here' and went back to playing with his tops," She said.

Since saving his mom, Zach has returned to his full time occupation: playing pogs and video games with his three older brothers—Gabe, 7, Josh, 9, and Benji 10.

SAINT LARRY: OKLAHOMAN OF THE YEAR

HON. CHARLES B. RANGEL

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, April 7, 1995

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, I rise to pay tribute to my very dear friend, the Reverend Larry Jones, head of Feed the Children, a humanitarian organization dedicated to feeding hungry children and helping people to lead normal and productive lives.

Feed the Children has delivered food and medical supplies to such countries as Haiti,
